DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 1 recites the limitation

“a browser means configured to require that substantially all pages be reviewed and checked before delivery to the recipient, said browser means creating varying degrees of accessibility to data in accordance with predetermined limits and criteria and being dynamically controlled to prevent the use of any other browser in conjunction with the system” in lines 2 – 6;

“a dynamic filter controlled by a central location to permit monitoring and filtering of the data transmitted and structuring of the infrastructure” in lines 6 – 8;

There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being vague and indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Applicant has not positively claimed whether the claimed invention is for integrating a browser as a part of the monitored data, or, the claimed invention is for screening of unwanted material.

Applicant has not positively claimed whether dynamic filter monitors and filters the data transmitted and structures the infrastructure, or, it is just a user interface

Applicant has not positively claimed whether the flagging filter component scans messages and data prior to delivery.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over an article ePALS Classroom Exchange First to Provide Teacher Monitored Email With Instant Language Translation hereinafter known as ePALS, in view an article "MessageLabs: British Government Take On MessageLabs to Bolster Virus Protection hereinafter known as MessageLabs.

Regarding claim 1, ePALS teaches having an apparatus for monitoring and filtering data transmission. ePALS teaches Teacher Monitored Email wherein Teachers,

Art Unit: 3629

Principals and Administrators can safely offer email accounts to students at all ages, and monitor for inappropriate content being sent or received. Even though ePALS does not specifically recite browser, it is old and known to one of ordinary skill in the art that online systems use browsers for interface to be able to communicate with the user. ePALS teaches capability wherein Teachers, Principals and Administrators can safely offer email accounts to students at all ages, and monitor for inappropriate content being sent or received. Even though, ePALS does not specifically recite prevention of use of any other browser, however, it is old and known to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention that service providers have used proprietary browsers to maintain proprietary environment, for example, America Online, Prodigy, CompuServe who used proprietary browsers to communicate with the users.

ePALS teaches capability for:

a browser means configured to require that substantially all pages be reviewed and checked before delivery to the recipient

a dynamic search engine to permit searching of data, a dynamic filter to permit monitoring and filtering of the data transmitted and structuring of the infrastructure ePALS does not explicitly teach to scan messages and data prior to delivery. However, MessageLabs teaches concept to scan messages and data prior to delivery to protect the infrastructure against threat of destructive mail viruses.

Therefore, at the time of invention, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify ePALS by adopting teachings of MessageLabs and scan messages and data prior to delivery to protect the infrastructure against threat of destructive mail viruses.

ePALS in view of MessageLabs reaches capability for having a component to scan messages and data prior to delivery.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Applicant is required under 37 CFR '1.111 (c) to consider the references fully when responding to this office action.
